Anti-Crime Book Drive Succeeds with Cooperation

Decision of the Torrance Committee for Decent Literature to pursue a program of volunteer cooperation rather than to utilize law enforcement measures has proved a wise and effective one, it was revealed at last Tuesday night's City Council meeting.

First, the Council received and filed with a vote of commendation the yearly report of the committee, transmitted by Dorothy Stoockle, chairman, in which she revealed 27 local establishments have been given "Awards of Cooperation" for their volunteer efforts in clearing the shelves of Torrance newstands of all questionable literature.

Second, and coincidentally, City Attorney Stanley E. Remelmeier reported to the Council that a city ordinance in Glendale, prohibiting the sale of crime comic books to children under 18, had recently been recommended that a similar ordinance in Torrance be amended to eliminate a like provision.

The local ordinance will still retain an existing provision making it a crime to sell or have in one's possession any lewd, indecent or obscene literature.

In her report to the Council, Chairman Stoockle made the following recommendations:

1. That the council consider contacting the League of California Cities and the County Board of Supervisors suggesting their recommendation and support of similar programs elsewhere.
2. The City Attorney be instructed to study and submit a report to our committee regarding legal action such as has been successfully culminated in Cincinnati, Philadelphia and Chicago.

3. That the committee be granted permission to enlarge its membership
